PRICE FIVE CENTS.

AN OBSCENE SPEECH Clears the House Galleries of Ladies.

INDIGNATION OVER THE MATTER.

A Large Crowd of Ladies Gather to Hear Sunset Cox Speak, and Are Disgusted at a New Member's Remarks.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—[Special.]—In the house this afternoon there was the most disgraceful scene by one of the republican members that surpasses anything of the kind almost within the history of congress. Mr. Mason, of Chicago, is a new member and ordinarily bright, but today he so far forgot himself as to deliver one of the most vulgar, dirty and obscene speeches that has ever been heard in the halls of congress. In brief the grossness of its obscenity is too pronounced to appear in any reputable newspaper. There was so much vulgarity that it drove from the galleries the thousand or more ladies who had gathered there more for the purpose of listening to the able speech of Sunset Cox. The majority of the people in the galleries were those who attended in attendance upon the Baptist convention. There is some talk that Mason may have brought to the bar of the house and reprimanded, if not turned out.

Senator Voorhees, of Indiana, made a great speech tonight before the Indiana association, vindicating himself of the charges made by Senator Ingalls in the senate a few days ago. There were several thousand people present; many prominent southern congressmen were on the stage.

Friends of the administration who went from here to attend the New York state democratic convention have returned not quite satisfied with the tariff resolution in the platform. They say there was a resolution drawn which endorsed the Mills bill by name, and that there was a large majority of the convention in favor of it. It was to prevent a small and very earnest minority, from making a noise and disturbing the harmony of the convention that they consented to adopt merely the endorsement of the Cleveland message. The thing was brought about by Messrs. Cooper and Herrick, both of whom are avowed Cleveland men, the latter especially being looked upon as an ardent defender and advocate of the administration. It was due to an unaccountable opposition on the part of Messrs. Hewitt and Cooper to the Mills bill, rather than have an open rupture with even a small minority of the convention, in which they wanted perfect harmony, they consented to omit the Mills bill from the resolutions, leaving the endorsement of that specifically to the national convention.

The leading republican members of the house caucused on the tariff question today, but the conference revealed the fact that there was a considerable difference among the members of the caucus committee. This difference was made apparent not so much in the consideration of the Mills proposition as in the failure to agree upon the line of the substitute bill, which was to be offered by the republicans for the Mills bill. It is expected, however, that as usual they will unite upon some measure. The plan of the democrats of the war and peace committee now is to go through a canvass of the house on Saturday after the closing speech of Speaker Carlisle, and if they find enough supporters of the bill to carry it through they will then make an attempt to have a test vote. If, however, they do not find a majority who favor the bill the appropriation bill will be taken up and action delayed until after the St. Louis convention, which they expect will adopt the bill in the platform and force all democrats to vote for it. A southern democrat, who favors the bill, said to me tonight that if a vote was taken before action by the St. Louis convention its defeat would be certain. He had no doubt but that at least ten democrats would vote against it, which is enough to defeat it.

The Post, of this city, is still fighting democratic opponents of the bill, and wants all who hold to the creed of the opposite side to change places. Even the most earnest advocates of the bill curse the Post for its course, and will no longer acknowledge it to be the organ of the administration. It is, however, said that the president thinks the Post is pursuing the correct course.

A SLIM AUDIENCE.

There was never such a farce enacted in the house of representatives as that tonight. There were five speakers—Sawyer, Maish, Romeo, Spooner and Nichols. Besides these only two democrats, McMillen and Springer, and one republican, Lyman, were present. Lyman occupied the chair, while the republicans were speaking, and some other members were speaking, and some other members were telling jokes in the lobby. During Nichols's speech only the chairman and official reporters were in the hall, while in the gallery two negroes were stretched out on a bench, asleep. He nevertheless spoke to the empty hall for almost an hour.

NAVAL DISPLAY AT PORT ROYAL.

Representative Elliott, of South Carolina, today received information from Secretary Whitney that the North Atlantic squadron would arrive at Port Royal on the 20th, where they will rendezvous for a week. Secretary Whitney has instructed Admiral Luce to treat visitors who are expected there at that time to a grand naval display. The citizens of Port Royal and Beaufort have invited the two yacht clubs of Charleston and Savannah to visit them during the display. The exact date has not been decided upon, but it will probably be either the 23d or the 24th. The admiral will fix the day after his arrival. The squadron consists of the Atlantic, the Richmond, the Osprey, the Yantic and the Dolphin.

PENSION APPROPRIATIONS.

The Senate Adopts the Committee's Amendment and the Bill Passes.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—In the senate, the pension appropriation bill was taken up, the question being as to the amendment reported by the committee on appropriations to strike out the words, "That in all pension to be made, payments shall be made from the date of death of the husband," and to insert, "That all payments which have been, or which may hereafter be granted under the general laws regu-lating pensions to widows in consequence of death occurring from cause which originated in the service since the 4th of March, 1861,shall commence from the date of death of the husband."Mr. Cockrell moved to amend the amendment by striking out the words "which have been made" as to combine its application to future pensions. He suggested that the additional cost under the senate amendment would be $1,473,000. If his own amendment were adopted the additional cost for 1889 would be $756,000. It, however, the house provision was agreed to, there was no estimating its cost, and the senate was absolutely at sea without compass or chart in reference to it.After a long debate, Mr. Cockrell's amendment was disagreed to—yeas 20, nays 23—a party vote, except that Mr. Blodgett voted with the republicans in the negative.

The amendment reported by the committee on appropriations was then agreed to without division, and the bill was passed.The senate then, under the order of yesterday, proceeded to business on the calendar and passed, among other bills, the following:Senate bill appropriating $150,000 for quarters and barracks at branches of the national military home for disabled and volunteer soldiers.Senate bill for a light ship at Bashes Bluff Shoal, Elizabeth river, Va., not to cost over $20,000.After passing, in all, thirty-five bills, and after a brief executive session, the senate, at 10:45, adjourned till Monday.

SPEECHES ON THE TARIFF.

Messrs. Breckinridge, Cox and Others Express Their Views.WASHINGTON, May 17.—In the house, Mr.
Henderson, of Iowa, presented the conference report on the Cincinnati exposition bill and it was agreed to.

The house went into committee of the whole (Mr. Breckinridge, of Illinois, in the chair) on the tariff bill.

Mr. Breckinridge, of Arkansas, opened his speech with a recitation of an eulogy of the president's annual message, and declared that it had met with so great popular favor that perhaps the members of the democratic party and sought some place of refuge among the democratic line, and that the chief of opposing forces who had rushed valiantly into the fight had sent a letter which was practically a letter of resignation withdrawing entirely from the contest. In the course of events the president had been compelled to make some changes in his cabinet, and that committee reported a bill to the house proposing a reduction of taxation. This had been made an occasion of violent assault and the most extravagant efforts of the democratic party to have it opposed, and to have it declared unconstitutional. This had found that it was a bill that fell short of even the conservative recommendations of the president. The people were beginning to approve the bill. Today, all over the country, county after county, district after district, and state after state, in the antislavery demand that there should be a reduction of taxes.

After a brief reference to the proceedings of the ways and means committee, in which he denied that the majority had ever refused the right of petition, and criticized the minority for their opposition to the bill, he referred to the report of the committee on appropriations.

In his speech on the subject of free wool, he referred to and denied the charge brought by gentlemen on the other side that the placing of wool on the free list was a sectional measure, designed to injure the wool powers of the north and west. In support of his denial, he stated that from 1860 to 1865, sheep in New England, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania had fallen off from 9,000,000 to 8,000,000. The future of the sheep industry would be in the south, and the proposition to make wool on the free list was a measure which was a gross offer, because sheep were more of a product of the south than states that were clamoring against this feature of the bill.

In conclusion he said that bill proposing to remedy the existing evils of the tariff was a moderate and conservative measure, and which he had been ready to adopt. He then referred to the motion of Mr. Yost, who had interrupted him, and that he had moved to adjourn. Mr. Yost had moved to adjourn, and the motion was carried.

Mr. Hubbard then briefly addressed the convention, enlivening in high terms the republican party and favoring the protective tariff. Resolutions were adopted providing for the formation of a national committee on credentials, on the election of district congressional electors, delegates and delegates at large to the Chicago convention and members of the state committees.

A recess was taken until 4 p. m.

At 4 o'clock before the convention was again called to order, Chairman Lamb announced that although delegations from the second, third and fifth districts were not yet present it would be in order for other districts to make their reports.

THE FOREST CITY.

The Great Success of the Tybee Excursion.

Testing Torpedo Signals—A Prisoner to be Brought Back From Canada—The Lilienthal Case.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 17.—[Special.]—Mr. P. J. O'Connor returned from the convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians at Louisville with honors, having been appointed chairman of the national directors.

Magistrate Noughlin's office presented today the appearance of an arsenal in war time. Citizens were seen leaving it in strings, bearing arms of various descriptions and armfuls of cartridges. The stock of the defaulting and absconding gunsmith, Kessler, was being auctioned off.

The last of the three thousand who went to Tybee yesterday on the excursion of Catholic Knights, reached Savannah at 1:30 a. m., today, tired but enthusiastic in their description of a day by the sea. The immense crowd was easily handled on the return trip. All of the excursionists were seated in the boats, proving that the road is now able to accommodate the largest of excursion parties.

The 20th anniversary celebration of the Wesleyan monumental Sunday school took place this evening in the Sunday school room. For several years, this school has excelled in its work, and went beyond previous records tonight. The singing was the principal feature, and was splendidly conducted by Mr. W. B. Thomas.

The Savannah, Florida and Western railway company is testing the use of new types of tongs with a view to its adoption.

In all probability it will, at first, be tried for a short distance, and, if found successful, will be adopted by the road.

The firm of Fleming & Adams, green grocers, dissolved some time ago, and the partners of the firm are still in the city. It has culminated today in one of the most hotly contested fights that was ever witnessed in this city. The weapons were a club and a whip, and their natural weapons. They wore their instruments of torture out and rolled each other over the car track on Whitaker street, until they finally took them in bleeding at every pore.

The Canadian authorities respect the word of an Englishman. The negro Adam Moore, who beat Conductor Barberie brutally, will possibly be extradited after the last night's trial. Captain Voss, the most popular drive in Macon, and the many people who take advantage of its good roads are complaining of the manner in which they are being cut up by the grading of the road.

But the track is being filled up as fast as the railroads, and the road hard will pack as a track makes as soon as it is made.

Captain Voss was heard to remark: "I expected to complete the line to Vineville branch by Saturday night, but the way the men are working we will get to Wesleyan college, sure."

THE GIRL DOES NOT KNOW HIM, Though He Claims That He is Her Father—A Queer Case.

MACON, Ga., May 17.—[Special.]—There has been a rather puzzling case going on in the city for the last few days. On a week ago last Saturday at a Methodist church home, asked to see Sister Margaret, represented himself as Mr. Slaton, of Alabama, and said he was the father of a girl by that name who was an inmate of the home. The girl was called her. She says she has been in the home ever since her mother died, and that she is his daughter, says he is going to have her. Sister Margaret, who has charge of the home, was greatly annoyed at his actions, and asked Chief Wiley for protection. The chief ordered Officer Bonner to go up and watch for the fellow, who, it is said, has a gun and carries a knife, but the man did not appear again, so the officer returned to his beat. Slaton says he will obtain a writ of habeas corpus, and get the child, and through the courts. The girl was sent to the home four years ago by Bector Hanks, of an Atlanta church, and Sister Margaret said that her father died when she was two years old. It is rumored that Thomas Slaton is an uncle of the child, but why he tries to obtain her as his father is unknown. The case is very much mixed up, and further developments are looked for with much interest.

Sixty Hands at Work.

MACON, Ga., May 17.—[Special.]—Superintendent Voss of the dummy line, has a force of sixty-experienced hands at work on the track and road, and they are doing some very rapid work. Captain Voss has signed a contract with the American, Preston and Lumpkin railroad for enough iron to complete the four miles that they are going to build. These rails were bought for the Americans, Preston and Lumpkin narrow gauge, and weigh thirty pounds to the yard. Some were found to be too light, however, and heavier ones were bought. As they then had the others on hand and paid for them, Captain Voss succeeded in getting them at quite a bargain. They are now arriving by the carload and are being put down as fast as the railroads, and the road hard will pack as a track makes as soon as it is made.

Captain Voss is the most popular drive in Macon, and the many people who take advantage of its good roads are complaining of the manner in which they are being cut up by the grading of the road.

Working On the Parks.

MACON, Ga., May 17.—[Special.]—Work on the Mulberry and Third street boulevards are progressing very rapidly under the guiding hand of Superintendent J. W. Dunn, who has a large force of brick masons and laborers at work. The work is being done in a manner that is creditable to the city, and it is to be hoped that the work will be completed in time for the opening of the Constitution bureau, on Mulberry street, and to expect to finish it on Monday next.

ATLANTA, GA., MAY 18, 1888.

Read It Out of the Party.

We find in the New York World the following remarkable attack on the president and on the democratic party:

The essence of civil service reform is selection for fitness and promotion based on demonstrated capacity. In this there is no truer principle for the minor offices, much more is it so for high judicial positions. To nominate for chief justice of the United States a man who has never been a judge of any sort whatever, and who, however excellent as a politician and citizen, has only a local reputation as a lawyer, is a disregard of the principle of selection that properly challenged the scruples of the whole.

There is a tendency, alike undemocratic and deplorable, to encourage the executive in the exercise of absolute one-man power that is foreign to the nature of his office and to the framework of our government of co-ordinate branches. This was seen during General Grant's incumbency in the offer of ten per cent on all advertisements brought to the office by the editorial staff induces us to hope that the major is prospering. As an assurance of our distinguished consideration, we trust that all advertisements sent to the Mail and Express from this territory will be conveyed through Major Bundy.

A MURDER is not an important affair in New York as the attitude of witnesses on the stand. This is very queer indeed.

following blank, which the proprietor parenthetically announces at the bottom of the circular is "for his personal information only":

Name—Address—Where born—How old—Are you an American citizen?—Married or single?—If married, of how many and whom does your family consist?—A graduate of what college and class?—Position desired—Past experience in journalism—Politics—Denomination—Are you a church member?—If so, of what church?—Can you read and write any other than the English language?—Hobbies—Hobbies—What compensation is expected?—Are you willing to give your whole time?—Sundays excepted, and abilities to the Mail and Express?—General information.

The colonel's circular, of course, created a sensation in the office, but the boys all promptly responded, though it is said that Major Bundy swore three times before he could be induced to humor the whim of his eccentric employer. Just what Colonel Shepard is up to nobody knows, but everybody is convinced that he has adopted a most peculiar method of running a newspaper.

Of course, the veteran Major Bundy has the sympathy of the public in the severe strain which is undergoing, but Colonel Shepard's liberal indorsement in the offer of ten per cent on all advertisements brought to the office by the editorial staff induces us to hope that the major is prospering. As an assurance of our distinguished consideration, we trust that all advertisements sent to the Mail and Express from this territory will be conveyed through Major Bundy.

A MURDER is not an important affair in New York as the attitude of witnesses on the stand. This is very queer indeed.

Cable and the Negro.

The Boston Advertiser prints these few remarks in regard to the so-called negro problem at the south:

Mr. George W. Cable, who unquestionably stands at the head of the literary men of the south, has spoken on this topic against the treatment of negroes, and he is, in consequence, receiving a good deal of criticism from administration newspapers. Mr. Cable doubtless knows as much about the question, and is as honest, as his democratic critics, and if there were more men like him at the south today few political thought might cease to be a crime, and the public would be less likely to witness the spectacle of the south in the journal of that whole region than that the industrial interests of the country be disregarded simply to persecute the rule of the negro.

This is all very fine. Mr. Cable is undoubtedly a literary artist, but does it follow that he is therefore a philosopher?

The CONSTITUTION was the very first paper in this country to recognize and commend his literary genius, and, for this purpose, it jumped on his first story, which appeared in Appleton's Journal, like a duck on a June bug. Nor do we believe that Mr. Cable is any less a literary artist because he is a crank on the negro question.

The point that we make against the Advertiser is, that while Mr. Cable may know a good deal about literary art, he doesn't know anything at all about the negro question at the south. If our contemporary is of the opinion that this view of the matter arises from personal prejudice against Mr. Cable, we refer him to the recently printed letters of Governor Rufus B. Bullock, who is an ardent republican. Governor Bullock knows no such question as that which vexes the artistic mind of Mr. Cable. His testimony is to the effect that the negroes are the strongest ticket which the republicans could nominate if they want to, and that they have all the rights they are entitled to under the law.

Governor Bullock is on the ground; he is a republican, and his opinion is worth more than that of Mr. Cable, not only because he is here, but because he is a practical man and a very close observer. But this is not all the testimony from the republican side. We quote from the New York Evening Post for the benefit of our Boston contemporary:

The absurd screed on "The Negro Question" which that romancer, George W. Cable, put forth as a sober statement of facts two months ago, is, as the Southern Workman, the John Bull of the journal published by people connected with the Hampton (Va.) Institute for the education of negroes. The head of the institute, General Armstrong, is a northerner who was a union soldier, and he always been a republican, and twenty years of experience in his present position has made him a decided union man, and a strong advocate in the south that anarcho-like Mr. Cable.

The Southern Workman quotes the "pessimistic, depressing, well-nigh hopeless" conclusions reached by Mr. Cable, and says: "This is rhetoric, but it's fact." Answering its own question, it says: "Our experience in twenty years' work in the field is to the effect that the negro vote is becoming more and more solid, and that the negroes are becoming more and more numerous, and that the negro vote is becoming more and more important beyond the appointments of standing committees."

DASHED as a Literary Critic.

It is to be feared that while Editor Murray Hulst is a pretty good partisan, he is not an expert in literature. At the recent bar meeting in Chicago, Mr. Melville W. Fuller, whom the president has nominated for chief justice of the supreme court, made the following quotation in his eulogy on Chief Justice Waite:

Only a sweet and virtuous son, like seasoned timber, never gives; and though the whole world turn to coal, then chiefly lives.

Editor Hulst, quoting these lines, asked in his light and winsome way: "Will some kind indulgent friend tell us where Mel got them and what they mean?"

It seems that Editor Hulst, although he is the author of a noisy ode entitled, "The Little Miami and its Tributaries," is not as well read in literature as some of his contemporaries. In other words Cincinnati is not as far north as Chicago and not as far east as Boston, and the mail facilities appear to be in a crippled condition.

The result is that hundreds of correspondents in sections where books are read have had the pleasure of informing Editor Hulst that the quotation is from a poem by George Herbert, beginning

"Sweet day, so calm, so cool, so bright,"

which for two hundred years or more has been regarded as one of the gems of English literature.

We do not know what course Editor Hulst will pursue in this matter, but we advise him to do as he did when Phil Sheridan pulled him out of a gully at the battle of Sedan—rise to the dignity of the occasion by taking a drink of American whisky out of a North American flask.

NEW YORK city is full of sensations just now, which is only another way of saying that it is full of depravity.

Humiliating Major Bundy.

Major Bundy, of New York, has long been recognized as one of the most able and experienced of the many brilliant journalists of the metropolis, and through the columns of the Mail and Express his reputation has been extended to every part of the country.

The time was when Major Bundy's word in the journalistic world carried as much, if not more, weight than any other editor in the country. But all this was in the days of the zenith of Major Bundy's life.

That eminent editor has long been compelled to take the back track, so to speak, and retire before that rising journalistic luminary, Colonel Elliott F. Shepard, the announcement of which many strange freaks since his purchase of the Mail and Express has made him familiar to the reading public.

It seems that Colonel Shepard's chief object in gaining control of the Mail and Express was to humiliate Major Bundy, and he has pursued this with a persistence that has been highly creditable to his energy. Not satisfied with inflicting upon Major Bundy the pains consequent to his many eccentricities, the colonel turned his attention to Foster Coates, and now he has widened his scope and taken in his whole staff, to each of whom he has recently issued the following circular, which, as number 2, is a stranger document than his famous number 1 order, of which notice has already been made in these columns:

Each employee of the Mail and Express has been required by order No. 2 to fill the letter.

We quote his precise words: Mr.

Cleveland could not have carried New Jersey than without such words as these. He cannot carry it again without uttering similar words, and he need not try. The CONSTITUTION stands pat with Mr. Cleveland on these words. We have eaten no "crow" and have none to eat, if President Cleveland stands now where he did when he spoke those words! And if he has changed, why then have we distinguished company in our unaccustomed meal!

But, that is a matter of moonshine. We have seen so much "crow" eaten in Georgia in the past four years that really the meat of that maligned bird does not look black after all. The News and Advertiser is exactly right, when it says that THE CONSTITUTION is in line for the fight! We shall not contend over the past, but the paper that does more for Cleveland's reelection and the triumph of democracy between now and November 4th, can eat pie at our expense and not "crow" pie either!

We observe that the Virginia democrats are somewhat cautious in presenting their tariff views. Let us hope that they will not be read out of the party. We want to help them elect a democratic president.

THE PHILADELPHIA NEWS is disposed to question the statement that New York will exercise the most potent influence in the republican convention. "Pennsylvania first, last, and all the time," exclaims the News. The News is right: Pennsylvania probably has more power in the republican convention than any other state, simply because that state has eyes and blindly follows the lead of the republican party. Other states of the public convention, however, it is heard of but little, for the republicans realize the fact that it is not necessary to bicker with the state that wouldn't be driven from their ranks, and the democrats of course look to other states for material with which to carry on the government's administration. Pennsylvania is now the least child of American politics, and its position is to be pitied.

SENATOR VOORHEES, in writing to a friend concerning his recent bout in the senate with Senator Ingalls, whom he terms "the Kansas ruffian," says:

"I am thoroughly at peace with myself on this subject. I am willing to live or die on the report of the senate proceedings contained in the Congressional Record of May 2. I made no revision; did not even see the reporter's notes after I had spoken, and let my words go the world just as they fell from my lips. They appeared the next morning after the debate. The two hours' speech made by the Kansas ruffian has not yet appeared in the Congressional Record. Why it is withheld I do not know, but might conjecture."

MR. BLAINE'S FRIENDS are now openly claiming his nomination, and look to the party on the work of the convention.

THE ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT is making an enthusiastic fight for General Gresham for the republican presidential nomination, and says that his entry into the list of aspirants has wonderfully simplified the political situation. It is evident that he would carry every state carried by the republicans in 1884, with Indiana in addition; and that he could make a better fight in New Jersey and Connecticut than any other republican. There is no doubt but that Gresham's chances for the nomination grow continually better as the time for the convention approaches. It is now almost a matter of certainty that the choice will lie between Blaine and Gresham; and it is possible that the ticket may be made up of Blaine and Gresham, which is generally accepted to be the strongest ticket which the republicans could nominate if they want to, and that they have all the rights they are entitled to under the law.

Governor Bullock is on the ground; he is a republican, and his opinion is worth more than that of Mr. Cable, not only because he is here, but because he is a practical man and a very close observer. But this is not all the testimony from the republican side. We quote from the New York Evening Post for the benefit of our Boston contemporary:

POSTMASTER TOM HARDIMAN, of Macon, is joined in his opposition to the civil service reform rules by a United States marshal in Texas, who has openly declared against the ridiculous system. The New York Post will please note this and forthwith make a demand that the aforesaid marshal be discharged from the service. It will be observed, however, that your Uncle Tom still holds on.

The point that we make against the Advertiser is, that while Mr. Cable may know a good deal about literary art, he doesn't know anything at all about the negro question at the south. If our contemporary is of the opinion that this view of the matter arises from personal prejudice against Mr. Cable, we refer him to the recently printed letters of Governor Rufus B. His testimony is to the effect that the negroes are the strongest ticket which the republicans could nominate if they want to, and that they have all the rights they are entitled to under the law.

THE CONSTITUTION stopped short of such criticism as that which the World indulges in. Both of us were in favor of the reform and revision of the tariff suggested by the platform on which the president was elected, and both were in favor of the abolition of the internal revenue taxes in order to make that revision more complete. But the democratic party overruled us, and we submitted without a murmur, and now comes the New York World with its bosh about the nomination of Melville W. Fuller.

As a democratic paper, the World should take a back seat.

PAT WALSH is a bigger man now than he ever was. The people of Georgia never did tolerate intolerance.

Not a Question of Crow—But Party.

We clip the following from the Albany News and Advertiser, a stout fighter and a fair one:

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION has eaten the dish of which the state's democratic convention set for it last week with as much grace and as few grins as could be expected. The News and Advertiser are as cool as a cucumber.

IT NOW SEEMS that the senate is not ready to confirm the nomination of Mr. Fuller as chief justice as it was believed it would be. The nomination is hung up in the judiciary committee, and various protests have been entered against the confirmation by bloody-shirters from all parts of the country. Mr. Fuller is being attacked on his record as a member of the Illinois legislature just after the war. It is probable that the republicans may attempt to withdraw any action on the matter during this session, in which event the nomination falls, and the president can make no other nomination until the next session. Such a course would do more injury to the republican party than it would to the chances of Mr. Fuller's confirmation.

The News and Advertiser are as cool as a cucumber, and the Advertiser has even written to the News and Advertiser to say that the Advertiser is not to be expected to do any more than it has done.

THE EMPORER TAKES AN AIRING.—BERMINGHAM, Ala., May 17.—[Special.]—At Ensley, six miles from this city, this morning, Terrell Darden, a negro, an ex-convict, was sentenced by Deputy Sheriff Jack Faseo, Faseo arrested the negro for burglary, and while reading the warrant the officer knocked down by his prisoner, who then started to run. Faseo got up and started in pursuit. The negro again turned on him, and was shot through the heart. Darden had just served out a five years' sentence for burglary, and rolled a store at Pratt mines a few days after he was released.

The tragic death of Mr. Tom Gresham seemed to cast a gloom over the entire city yesterday.

The prominence of the gentlemen connected with the affair, and especially the universal popularity of the great hearted victim who now lies cold in death, made it the universal topic of conversation about the streets and in the homes of Atlanta.

During the day rumors of threats of visiting summary punishment upon the man who did the shooting were frequent. The authenticity of these rumors was generally doubted, but the authorities took every precaution, and last night a strong guard of police officers and special deputies slept in the jail.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased "came to his death from a pistol wound in the right side, made by a pistol in the hands of George H. Eddieleman, and that in our opinion it was a case of willful murder."

Mr. Eddieleman in jail. All day yesterday Mr. Eddieleman was kept awake in his cell, most of the time by his lawyer.

It is understood that Colonel Hulsey and Albert Cox will be associated with Judge Dorsey, Robert Arnold and James Mayson for the trial. About a quarter past five Mr. Eddieleman's attorney all day, and he had a consultation in his cell. The blind bigamist was turned into the cage in front of cell No. 12, the "murderer's cell," as it is called, in which the bigamist has been confined since his preliminary hearing, and the door of the cell was shut.

The blind bigamist listened to the voices, and as the door was shut he remarked thoughtfully:

"That fellow must be a bad man."

As soon as the lawyers left, Mr. Ozburn, the assistant attorney general, gave instructions from Mr. Poole, the jailer, who is to see Chief Connally with police headquarters.

"Oh, I don't think there's any danger," the chief was heard to remark.

"But you don't know," replied Mr. Ozburn.

"Those railroad men thought lots of Gresham's story, but he was a good man, and fifty of them have stopped work and are coming to the jail tonight."

The first witness was Mr. John W. Marquis, the Swiss in charge of the lunch counter. His testimony was substantially as given in yesterday's CONSTITUTION. He said:

"I live at 142 Thompson street. Yesterday about 3:30, just as I noticed that this gentleman (Mr. Gresham) had entered the restaurant, I heard Mr. Eddieleman say that a man that belonged to a secret society was no gentleman. Mr. Gresham said. Didn't remember exactly why Mr. Gresham called Eddieleman a liar, but he did so, and Mr. Eddieleman struck him on the right jaw with his fist. Mr. Gresham got off the stool upon which he had been sitting. Eddieleman put his hand in his right hand vest pocket. I didn't see a knife or anything else in Gresham's hand. The next thing I saw was the flash of a pistol, which was in Eddie-leman's hand, and Gresham said, 'O, Lord, I am lost. I do not know that either of them were drinking. I saw neither of them take a drink.'

"Did you see Mr. Gresham with a knife in his hand?"

"No, sir. I didn't see anything in his hand."

"If he had had one I could have seen it."

JOHN HALL'S TESTIMONY. John Hall, the colored waiter at the lunch counter, testified to about the same thing.

"I had heard two men at the end of the table talking about secret societies. Mr. Eddieleman was very restive, which was 'rascal' and this gentleman (pointing to Mr.
Gresham's corpus) said: 'You shouldn't say that for I belong to a secret society myself.' I heard Mr. Gresham call Mr. Eddieleman liar. Then I heard the call of the waiter, and I went to him. Eddieleman striking Mr. Gresham with a stick.

"They just saw it would be useless to attempt it."

"Was there much talk about it?" asked the chief.

"Yes. They just saw it would be useless to attempt it."

"What do you think of it?" asked the sheriff.

"You are certain of it?" asked the sheriff.

"They are all right now."

"Are you certain of it?" asked the sheriff.

"They are all right now."

NEWS OF SOCIETY.

What is Going on Among the People of Atlanta.

Entertainments Which Are to be Given in the Near Future—Points of Interest About People.

On Wednesday evening at the residence of Mrs.
Miles, on Walton street, a soiree musical was given by the pupils of Mrs. Fay's class. A large and elegant audience filled the parlors. Rare and expensive divers filled the apartments with their beauty and grace.

Mrs. Fay has only recently come to Atlanta from New York, but in a short time she has collected quite a large class of pupils. The following program was carried out:

1. Little Wanderer..... Miss Lizzie Merritt.

2. Alice in Lent..... Miss Bell Horn.

3. Sonadine..... Miss Jennie English.

4. Pilgrim Chorus..... Miss Lizzie Merritt.

5. Moreau and Romane..... Mand Smith.

6. Sonatine..... Miss Nellie Lloyd.

7. Child's Prayer..... Miss Merritt.

8. Schottisch..... Mand Miles.

9. Messenger of Love..... Miss Josie King.

10. Sunday Pathfinders..... Mrs. Fay.

Every number of the programme was listened to with the most undivided attention.

Mrs. Loyd is well known in the city for her beautiful voice. Her singing, especially of that evening, was very fine, and for the encore she sang
"I'm a good boy" in a manner that did not acquit itself with great credit.

Mrs. Fay is a true artist, as was shown by her execution and expression of her playing. Thus ended one of the most delightful and recherche events of the week.

There will be a most interesting entertainment in conjunction with an ice cream and berry festival at the residence of Captain N. D. Further, 196 Peters street this evening. A very good programme has been prepared, and a highly delightful time is anticipated by all who attend.

A very happy marriage took place at the Catholic church yesterday afternoon at five o'clock.

The contracting parties were Miss Rosalie W.
Thompson and Mr. John A. McMenamy.

The church was well filled with friends of both parties

a great many among them coming from East Point to witness the ceremony.

There were no decorations, but the alters being evident, the church was filled with flowers.

Providence presided in the ceremony, and at the appointed hour, struck up Mendelssohn's wedding march. A few moments after the bridal party entered the middle door, preceded by Miss Emily O'Keefe and Mr. Andrew Bain.

The bride was tastefully attired in a travelling suit of gray and carried in her hand an immense bouquet of roses. The couple stood at the altar by the hands of Father Egan, who recited the solemn rites of the Roman Catholic church, pronouncing the words which made them man and wife.

After the ceremony the bridal party proceeded to the passenger depot, thence to take the Air-line for Washington city, where they will reside about two weeks. The bride's parents are in New York.

Mrs. McDonald belongs to one of the oldest and most aristocratic southern families. She is the daughter of the late Colonel D. B. Thompson, of Co-

THE PRETTY JEWESS.

Preliminary Trial of Miss Sophia Metzger.

The Lively Disclosures Before Justice Manning—He Decides to Bind the Defendant Over to a Higher Court.

Miss Metzger's preliminary trial before Justice Manning yesterday morning attracted a very large crowd of spectators, among whom were twenty or thirty ladies.

The defendant is a petite Jewess, possessing all the beauty which is a characteristic of the daughter of Israel. She is as vivacious and talkative as she is pretty, and from the opening to the close of the proceedings was the cynosure of all eyes.

She was charged with assault and battery upon the persons of Miss Smith and Miss Kearne, the two young ladies whom she searched last Monday against their will. She was accompanied by her lawyer, Colonel Adolph Brandt and a friend, Miss Sloan. She chatted pleasantly with her attorney as she entered the courtroom, and showed no concern about the investigation about to begin. Her nonchalance during the trial was refreshing.

The prosecution began by placing Miss Lula Smith upon the witness stand. She testified that she was an employee of Miss Metzger, who professed to have lost a ten dollar gold coin last Monday. She made a general charge that it had been stolen from her by one of the young ladies, and she suggested that one or more of the members of the young ladies' orchestra were the highest sort of scoundrels.

The sale of tickets had begun. There will doubtless be a rush for the choice seats as everybody will attend. Single concert tickets, 75 cents; for both concerts $1.25.

THE WAGNER FESTIVAL.

Great Interest Felt in the Approaching Event—The Day and Date.

The Wagner festival is the next event of great local interest.

The sale of seats has been begun at Miller's, and the indications point to the most liberal participation in the date, May 23 and 25, draws near, the anniversary of his birth.

Wagner music has been "the fad" in New York and New England society and musical circles for the past two years, and the fact that the Wagnerian concerts are to be repeated in New York next year shows that they were liberally patronized. It is to know and appreciate Wagner music was to argue oneself ignorant of the highest music.

Critics in other cities have said that this Wagner festival is a bold undertaking for Atlanta. It may be that, but here, as is everything else Atlanta undertakes, she will succeed.

It is fortunate as to be present at the festival music that the people have a wonderful treat in store. The well known reputation of the conductor and of his soloists and members of the chorus is enough to insure an artistic success of the highest sort.

doubtless be a rush for the choice seats as everybody will attend. Single concert tickets, 75 cents; for both concerts $1.25.

THE POLYNIA CONCERT.

A Full Dress Rehearsal to be Held in De-

Give's Opera House Tonight.

Young ladies and gentlemen who are to participate in the benefit concert of the Polynia club will have a full dress rehearsal in De-Give's Opera house tonight. All the singers and the members of the orchestra are expected to be present.

Gounod's celebrated mass, which is to be given in its entirety at the concert next Tuesday night, will be rehearsed.

Polynia will accompany it in connection with a powerful organ and piano. The tympani will be used. There will be 100 voices in the chorus. The Polynia contains many of the best singers in Atlanta. The male singers are all thoroughly up in their parts.

The witness explained the nature of the indignities to which her person and her clothing had been subjected. The witness was cross-questioned, and she admitted that she preferred being searched to being suspected of theft.

The next witness was Miss Lena Smith, who testified that she was employed by the defendant. She confirmed the narrative told by the first witness. Her details touching the wholesale searching that was indulged in were full and explicit.

Mrs. Anna May-Dow will sing several solo.

Mrs. Southard will make his first appearance in concert in Atlanta. He is a very fine tenor singer.

Mr. Kay is one of the best baritones singers ever heard in Atlanta. He will be heard with great pleasure.

Mr. Eugene Hardeman is so well known that it is only necessary to announce that he will sing a solo. He is one Atlanta's favorites.

Miss Carrie Ward Mathews, the brilliant pianist, will be heard.

The concert will be under Mr. Barilli's management.

HE WAS DEAF.

And That was the Reason That Roberts was Killed at Bolton.

A gentleman from Bolton sheds new light upon the death of John W. Roberts, who was killed at that place a few days ago.

Mr. Roberts was, it seems, very deaf.

He was walking on the railroad track and the sound of a train caused him before he seemed to know of its presence.

He was not, as was first stated, facing the engine when he was killed. His face was turned the other way, and he never looked back, nor did he utter a word before he was struck.
